

National Crime Victims' Rights Week

April 19-25, 2020

Seek Justice | Ensure Victims' Rights | Inspire Hope

I started my job as a Victim Assistance Coordinator 13 years ago and at the time I had no idea what I was getting into. Since then, I have worked hard at providing information, assistance, resources, and most importantly, support to victims and their families during the worst times in their lives. It's a line of work that is public in one sense but not all that well known in another.

I get calls from people who are embarrassed and unsure of what to do. There are calls where victims are just angry and venting, but the vast majority are victims who are trying to find the way to reconciliation. They are hurt and they are wounded. It's my job to help victims navigate the difficult, sometimes dangerous, and often confusing days that follow a crime. For the most part, I know that victims are very grateful for whatever we do and this is why I do the job that I do. It is my hope that we never have to meet under these circumstances but if we do, I hope that my support will leave a lasting impact on you.

Sincerely,
Rae Riley
